Heads-up: freeway project poses troubles

Caltrans work on US 50 in Sacramento will impact West Sac streets, officials believe West Sacramento officials expect planned freeway repairs in Sacramento to create a traffic impact on key West Sacramento roadways.

"Caltrans plans to replace the top deck on a segment of Highway 50 between 18th and 24th streets in Sacramento, a segment often identified as the 'W-X freeway,'" reports city spokesman Art Schroeder.

It's a key east-west connection in Sacramento.

Work will run from April 22 to about June 25.

It starts with construction on the eastbound lanes from April 22 to May 21, with three eastbound lanes (and all westbound lanes, onramps and offramps) remaining open.

From May 22 through the Memorial Day weekend May 24-26, all eastbound ramps and lanes reopen.

From May 27 to the completion date, work will proceed on the westbound side, with three westbound lanes (and all eastbound ones) open.

Local officials believe the work will cause traffic spillover onto other freeways as well as certain boulevards in West Sacramento. Those include Jefferson Boulevard, Harbor Boulevard, 5th Street, Tower Bridge Gateway and West Capitol Avenue. Schroeder asked local motorists to drive patiently and consider mass transit, carpools, adjusted work schedules or working from home when possible during the course of the project.

West Sacramento asked Caltrans officials to delay the project until after kids are out of school in June, but Caltrans responded that it couldn't.

West Sacramento has also asked Caltrans to reimburse the area's businesses for losses incurred as traffic avoids U.S. 50.

GUEST COMMENTARY:

West Sac volunteers head to Mexico

Club members build a house on a hillside for south-of-the-border family

By Rotary Club of West Sacramento members Carol Bogart, Ken Wilson and Peter Anderson, with Rotary District 5180 Assistant Governor Judy Foote.

Four members of the Rotary Club of West Sacramento – President Mike Campbell, President-Elect Ken Wilson 2014-2015, Bill Bevier and Paul Kolarik – were joined in Tijuana, Mexico March 14 through March 21 by Winters Rotary Club member Cecil Padilla. The group's mission: Build a house for Ricardo and Sara Vargas and their two children.

The Rotarians and a handful of other volunteers, some as young as 18, slept in tents during the project. Wilson said, "The tent was great, but it was very cold in the mornings." Nighttime and early morning temperatures were in the 40s.

Although Mexico can be hot when the sun is high, only once did the daytime temperature approach 100 degrees. The construction crew benefited from daytime temperatures that largely were in the 70s.

Local professionals hired by the Rotarians poured a level concrete slab for the two-room house. Perched on the side of a steep incline, the finished house will have views of the city below and the distant mountains.

Sometimes balanced on a sawhorse wedged between the back wall of the house and the hill, the Rotarians framed walls with openings for windows. Then, they added a slanted roof. Tarpaper and chicken wired tightened up the framing. The chicken wire supported two coats of stucco.

The Vargas family owns the land – a condition for ownership of the house. The Vargas family could finish the interior of the house and paint the stucco once it dried. Built into the side of a hill, the house will last 10 to 15 years.

While in Mexico volunteering for Rotary International, the Yolo County Rotarians visited a cancer hospital founded by two young men, cancer patients who eventually lost their lives to cancer. The group also visited an orphanage.

Over spring break, student volunteers from various colleges will be arriving at the site to build more houses for thankful families.

Before the Vargas family got its new house, the four were subsisting in a tiny hovel made of salvaged materials from a dump. Padilla gave the mother the first of four blankets. See MEXICO, page 3

POLICE LOG

News items below are collected from police dispatchers' notes and arrest reports. The information in them has often not been verified beyond the initial reports.

March 26, 8:30 a.m.

Police investigating a burglary performed a "consent search" of a Hobson Avenue home on March 14 – finding some of the stolen property.

Later, the burglary victims provided more information on missing items. Officers returned to the same Hobson home on March 26 with a new warrant, to perform a search that included additional rooms. They found about 70 grams of methamphetamine and 4.3 grams of marijuana in a bedroom belonging to a 31-year old male resident. He was arrested.

A female resident came to the police station for an interview with police. She said that she and the man were the only people occupying that particular room (although the room was kept unlocked and there as a 15-year old boy in the home). The woman, age 40, was also arrested.

March 26, 4:50 p.m.

A man reported he had been robbed by a skinny local man known to be "constantly stealing from the area."

The suspect and a woman confronted the victim, who had a bike, on the 1200-block of West Capitol. The woman told the victim they were "gonna tax you, gonna take the bike." The man came from behind and punched the victim in the cheek, telling him to "give her the bike."

The woman then took the bicycle.

But while the officer was taking the victim's report, the suspect returned on a different bicycle. The officer detained him and arrested him for the bike theft. Then, during a search, the officer found a "brand new in-the-box" phone in his possession, with the box's theft prevention tab broken, suggesting it had been "ripped from the hanger."

The officer went to a drug store about 50 yards away across the parking lot, and checked the cell phone display racks. There was a bent hanger on one phone rack. A review of the See POLICE LOG, p. 4

Finalists for council seat:

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

The West Sacramento City Council is on track to fill a vacant seat on the council tonight.

Mayor Christopher Cabaldon and Mayor Pro Tem Mark Johannessen have winnowed a list of 25 applicants into a short list of six "finalists," invited to interview at tonight's public city council meeting.

Finalists are:

■ Bernadette Austin of Hearst Street, a project manager for an infill development company (she's now on the city's parks and community services commission);

■ Nate Eckler of Pender Island Road, director of technology at a high-tech firm;

■ Kyle Glankler of Quail Road, who is in construction management;

■ Martha Guerrero of Barberry Place, a social worker (her resume indicates she is now legislative representative for Los Angeles County, and is a city planning commissioner)

■ Dean Haakenson of Julian Drive, an analyst/paralegal for the state;

■ Beverly Sandeen of Lewiston Road, a higher education administrator (and current member of the city planning commission).

After a closed-session meeting at 6:30 p.m., the public meeting opens at 7. The meeting takes place at city hall, 1110 West Capitol Avenue.

Drop by for some refreshments and some conversation.

The West Sacramento Historical Society will host an exhibit marking the 50th anniversary of the first edition of the News-Ledger. The display can be viewed from April 3 through the month of August at the West Sacramento Community Center, 1075 West Capitol Avenue.

You're invited to the opening reception on Thursday, April 3, from 4-7 p.m.

Pearls of wisdom on a subject we often avoid

One of my tasks at the News-Ledger is to organize and edit the obituaries that come across my desk most weeks. It's a job I always try to take seriously since an obituary is usually the last words that ever appear in print about a person. What makes it especially difficult now and then is when the obituary is about a person I have known and liked, which seems to be happening much too often nowadays.

I guess as we all get older, when we learn that a family member or a friend of our youth has passed away, it is only natural to give death a little more thought than we usually do. And there has always been much about death that makes absolutely no sense to me. I mean, just when we human beings finally start figuring out what life is all about, it's usually about time to wrap the whole thing up. So, over the years, I have found myself looking to others to help me get my head around the fact that none of us are going to get out of this thing alive, and here is a little bit of what I have learned, starting of course with Shakespeare, whose insights into the human condition know no equal.

"Cowards die a thousand times before their deaths;

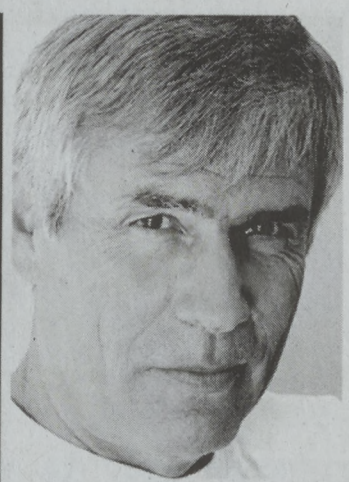

The valiant never taste death but once.

Of all the wonders that I yet have heard,

It seems to me most strange that men should fear death;

Seeing that death, a necessary end,

My Back Pages

By Daryl Fisher

Will come when it will come."

There are also those who take an even more pragmatic way of looking at death, like the platoon sergeant who crawled up to me in the middle of a firefight in Vietnam to see if I had enough ammunition, and when he realized I didn't have enough spit left in my mouth to speak, he smiled and said, "Fisher, dying is no big deal, anyone can do it."

There are those whose faith plays a big role in the way they look at dying, summed up I think by a very religious friend of mine who once told me, "I'm not afraid of dying at all, since all it means to me is that I get to go home."

Woody Allen, whose movies are often overflowing with his fear of death, thinks it would actually be best to live our lives in reverse.

"In my next life, I want to live my life backwards. You start out dead and get that out of the way. Then you wake up in an old folk's home feeling better every day. You finally get kicked out for being too healthy. You work for 40 years until you are young enough to enjoy your retirement. You party, drink alcohol, and are generally promiscuous until you are ready for high school. You then go to an elementary school, become a kid, and spend your days playing. Then you become a baby and spend the next nine months floating in luxurious spa-like conditions and then finish your life off as an orgasm."

Then there is the wonderful 17th century poet John Donne, who wrote the following famous poem, entitled "Death, be not proud":

"Death, be not proud, though some have called thee

Mighty and dreadful, for thou art not so; For those whom thou think'st thou dost overthrow Die not, poor Death, nor yet canst thou kill me.

From rest and sleep, which but thy pictures be,

Much pleasure; then from thee much more must flow,

And soonest our best men with thee do go,

Rest of their bones, and soul's delivery.

Thou art slave to fate, chance, kings and desperate men,

And dost with poison, war and sickness dwell,

And poppy or charms can make us sleep as well

And better than thy stroke; why swell'st thy then?

One short sleep past, we wake eternally

And death shall be no more; Death, thou shalt die."

Susan Sontag had these sobering words to say about death: "For those who live with neither religious consolations about

Just when we human beings finally start figuring out what life is all about, it's usually about time to wrap the whole thing up.

death nor with a sense of death as natural, death is the obscene mystery, the ultimate affront, the thing that cannot be controlled. It can only be denied."

And for those of us who have never been able to understand why so many good people seem to die so early in life, there is this from Hemingway, which I have come to believe is very true:

"The world kills the very good and the very gentle and the very brave impartially. If you are none of these, it will kill you, too, but there will be no special hurry."

Helen Keller, who was left deaf and blind from an illness at the age of two, saw death very simply: "Death is no more than passing from one room into another. But there's a difference for me, you know. Because in that other room I will be able to see."

Anyway, the older I get, and the more family members and friends I lose as they move on to bigger and better things, the more I have come to realize that although maybe the great writers and poets have come to understand death, all I really seem to know about it can be summed up in one little sentence from Emily Dickinson:

"Parting is all we know of heaven, and all we need of hell."

The man admitted to being on probation for drug possession. During a consent search, the officer found several syringes and a small amount of methamphetamine in the man's backpack. In the man's cart was a jacket with a drug smoking pipe.

After being put into the back of the patrol car to be booked, the man admitted to "using" the prior night, and said he had "told himself he was going to quit."

Letter to the Editor

I would like to publicly acknowledge the efforts of Dr. Jesse Ortiz, and his partners, for coordinating a county-wide fundraising event to help support the activities of our Homeless and Foster Youth.

Dr. Ortiz's spaghetti feed efforts raised several thousand dollars so our disadvantaged youth could participate in a variety of school activities that a typical family would support. Yolo County Office of Education (YCOE) supports the immediate needs of students to enroll in schools, but with approximately 1000 students needing help, there just weren't enough local funds for every student.

Two students who spoke praised their YCOE specialists for ensuring that students received something as simple as cleats in order to play football. It's so appreciated to work with Dr. Ortiz, an individual who supports our Yolo youth, ensuring students don't feel left out and have support to meet their goals.

Dr. Ortiz was able to pull together several partners who assisted in this effort and we appreciate the teamwork involved: Anna Vernon, Community Partner, Davis Odd Fellows, the Woodland Elks Lodge, and Yolo County Board of Education School Trustees. I commend the team who gave of their time and for the community's support!

"Ride Along" (PG-13) - Ben (Kevin Hart) wants to propose to his girlfriend (Tika Sumpter), but first he has to prove himself through a buddy-cop action-comedy routine with her scowling older brother (Ice Cube.) Ben is a school security guard who wants to make it as a real cop. Cube plays a true-blue Atlanta cop who takes Ben Kevin Hart seems to be the only thing working here. You feel bad for him, screeching and flailing as hard as he can in order to keep the movie's pulse up. The rest is weighed down by every buddy-cop cliché in the oldest book of clichés they could find. If the familiarity doesn't lose you, then you will find action and experience some laughter.

"The Secret Life of Walter Mitty" (PG-13) -- Walter Mitty (Ben Stiller) is a meek guy and prolific daydreamer working in the photo department of a magazine. At work, he's mocked mercilessly (by Adam Scott) in between longing glances at his crush, Cheryl (Kristen Wiig). Walter gets an abrupt rush of boldness and goes on an adventure to find a lost photo negative, suddenly blurring the lines between real life and his heroic fantasies. However, something's just not right with the tone of the film. There are scenes that are intentionally confusing, seemingly to say something deep -- but the audience is left behind on whatever journey Stiller is trying to take.

"The Nut Job" (PG) -- Surly the Squirrel (voiced by Will Arnett) plots a heist with some of his animated animal buddies. But they're not stealing money or valuables, they're robbing a nut store! Cause he's a squirrel! Surly is not well liked by his peers in the park -- in fact, he's been banished by a menacing raccoon with the smoldering tones of Liam Neeson's voice. It doesn't have the emotion or visual panache of Pixar, or the visual energy of Dreamworks, but it definitely has gimmicks. Fart jokes and catchy Korean pop tunes try to make up for everything else.

"Bletchley Circle: Season 2"
 "Ripper Street: Season 2"
 "The Practice: The Final Season"
 "Cosby Show: Season 3 & 4"
 "Beverly Hillbillies: Official Fourth Season"

Although most books have focused on these five women, a fascinating new work by Paul Begg and John Bennett suggests there might have been others ... the Ripper's "forgotten victims."

The authors focus on about a dozen female victims who were attacked during this same bloody period. They consider various suspects and theories, revealing the lengths to which some have gone to unmask Jack the Ripper. This is an important book and explores the intriguing question of why these Victorian-era murders continue to generate interest and titillation after more than 125 years.

You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code.
